

Kamal Nayan Kabra

Kamal Nayan Kabra is a senior economist and public policy expert. was Professor of Economics (1980-2003), Indian Institute of Public Administration, New Delhi and Malcolm S. Adiseshiah Chair Professor (2010-17), Institute of Social Sciences, New Delhi. Chairperson, Institute of Small Enterprises and Development, Cochin. He taught Economics at Ramjas College, Delhi University, and was the first Nehru Memorial Trust UK Scholar at the University of Cambridge (1966-67). Was a UGC visiting Professor at some Indian universities. Chaired one expert and another Review Committee of Government of India. He was Director, Food Corporation of India; Chairman of the Committee to Review Forward Markets, Government of India; and Chairman of the Expert Committee on the Economics of Tobacco, Government of India. Dr. Kabra was Member of the State Planning Board, Punjab, for two terms. Has been associated with and published studies concerning planning and development and management of public enterprises, including some foreign countries. A prolific writer, he has published extensively on economic policy, and industrial development. In addition to contributing to research journals and popular writing, has published several studies which include: The Black Economy in India: Problem and Policies; Black Economy and Mal-development; The Political Economy of Brain Drain; Development Planning in India; Appropriate Development ; People First; Political Economy of Policy Options: Nationalizations in India, 1947-1980 (2 Vols.); FDI in Retail: A Self-Goal; Political Economy of Public Distribution of Food in India along with ten popular social science books in Hindi. Endowment and Memorial Lectures in many institutions.